

Future Trends KithKin Press Release

01/2008

KithKin is a creative collective made up of like-minded friends, collaborating to realize ideas and provoke discussion. We utilize our wide range of disciplines by building a platform for networking and showcasing creativity.

20-23 Jan 2008

After the success of their shows in London and Tokyo, Designersblock kindly invited KithKin to be part of the Future Trends area at Design Interiors at the Birmingham NEC.

KithKin have curated a show that gives an insight into their thought process and design direction as a collective. Highlighting the methods they use, from making observations of daily life to visual brainstorming and model making, this show is here to inspire and provoke discussion.

They continue KithKin Presents, their unique selection of inspiring contemporary design, providing a platform for showcasing the most exciting work from students, graduates and professionals.

KithKin show the work of artists and designers nationally and internationally, with formats that have had integrity and permanence, staying true to their relative contexts. The objects, designs and ideas are carefully curated to show people conceptual design at its most fun, dangerous and at times even impractical.
